Circuit Court Session Short

JURY WAS DISMISSED WITHOUT SERVICE

Circuit court that convened Tuesday afternoon was very short at this term and no jury was impaneled and later dismissed soon after convocation. Circuit Judge Guy E. Smith made short work of the calendar and, with exception of a few details finished the work on Tuesday afternoon.

The case of Howard Weller, charged with violation of the liquor law, pleaded guilty at the January term and was out on postponed sentence. On his appearance in court he admitted that he had been intoxicated since being on parole and Judge Smith sentenced him to the reformatory at Ionia for six months, assuring him that he would be able to keep sober at least during that time.

Robert Alexander, also under parole from the January term, where he was found guilty by a jury for violation of the prohibition law, also reported before the court and assured the Judge that he had been faithful in his trust and was again paroled to appear in the July term of court.

B. Peter Johnson of Frederic, plead guilty to the charge of violation of the prohibition law, and was sentenced to from one to two years at the reformatory at Ionia, with the recommendation of six months. Because of his age Judge Smith stated that he was very reluctant to pass sentence upon him but that the law left no alternative and said that his sentence was the minimum that he was empowered to impose. Mr. Johnson had been convicted on a similar charge a number of years ago.

The civil case, an appeal from Probate court, in the matter of the estate of (Dr.) James A. Leighton, deceased, John Joseph Leighton, contestant and appellant, had been settled out of court and was dismissed without costs.

Also the civil case of Charles W. Kuehl vs. Thomas E. Douglas, trespass on the case, was dismissed without prejudice and without costs.

Lena M. Clothier vs. Ernest E. Clothier; divorce. Case was continued.

The petition of Oramel B. Fuller, auditor general of Michigan for the sale of certain land for the taxes assessed thereon for the year 1925 and previous years, is pending. Judge Smith, stating that decision would be rendered next Monday, at which time a decree will very likely be granted. The law requires that a decree cannot be granted within three days after the convening of court.

The case of John Brunn vs. Leon Babbitt, bill to quiet title, was settled out of court and the case dismissed.

The following jurymen reported for service:

Otto McIntyre, Grayling.
Albert Vallad, Maple Forest.
James H. Williams, South Branch.
Charles G. Nichols, Beaver Creek.
Ernie Roe, Frederic.
John Rasmussen, Grayling.
Alfred Hummel, Maple Forest.
LeRoy H. Scott, South Branch.

BETTER HOMES WEEK APRIL 22 TO 28

LOCAL STORES TO HAVE SPECIAL DISPLAYS

Better Homes Week Observance Meets Ready Response

"Better Homes" week—April 22 to 28—is meeting with ready response from our merchants and citizens generally. Many recall the very interesting display and program that were presented on this theme last year at Temple theatre and appreciate the value of such observance for our community.

This year the program will be changed and instead of holding a central display, the merchants will make special "Better Homes" displays in their own places of business. In fact the cooperation of nearly every institution in Grayling is assured. The business places will present "Better Homes" displays according to their lines of business. There will be "Better Homes" essays and poster contests, special sermons in the churches and programs in the schools.

The Home Nursing class under the direction of Miss Keeran, county nurse, will give demonstrations each morning of the week commencing April 22 from 8 to 8:40 a. m. in their class room at the school as follows:

Monday—How to give a bed patient a bath in a home—Alice Malloy.

Tuesday—Morning care of a patient in a home—Annabelle Harris.

Wednesday—Giving the baby a bath and dressing it—Ida Canfield.

Thursday—Care of communicable diseases—Rosemond Crall.

Friday—Equipment and care of the sick room, 1st aid kit and bandaging—Beatrice Owens.

Saturday—The Little Mothers League will demonstrate some of the work they have been doing in their classes at the Center. Girls ages from 10 to 12 years.

R. D. BAILEY LAID TO REST

Quite a large number of Grayling people attended the funeral of R. D. Bailey that was held in Gaylord Friday afternoon. The services were held in the Congregational church. Rev. J. W. Greenwood of Michelson Memorial church of Grayling conducted the service and delivered a most impressive funeral sermon.

The church was well filled with Grayling people and many from other cities. The casket was carried by six former co-workers of Mr. Bailey—all agricultural agents. Included in the list was Mr. Carr, state superintendent of County Agricultural agents.

The remains were laid to rest in Fairview cemetery, at Gaylord.

R. D. Bailey

I am distressed for thee, my brother Jonathan; very pleasant thou hast been unto me: Thy love was wonderful, passing the love of women.—2 Sam. 1. 26.

Here was a man sun-crowned, A man

Who companied with dawns, and flowers and stars; A man who detested sham, and loved that God

Who painted things, not as they seem, but are.

God has been good to him. Talents Of richer measure than oft bestowed on man

Were his. A keener vision and a more determined will To blaze new trails to glory, and God's secrets scan.

So lived he life in earnest. Heights sublime Of ideals lofty and of hopes not yet attained Called down to him. He struggled on and up And through the struggle kept his soul unstained.

Thus death laid claim to him. Afar he saw A promised land of home, and love and peace,

And home he reached, but not an earthly spot. But Heaven made possible through the soul's release.

And so we loved him. Tears he wiped away, For in a larger sphere, he nobly serves and lives.

Thanks be to God for immortality That smiles at death—for all the love He gives.

The Light of the Wild

I have crept away from the maddening crowd To a hill-top crowned with trees; I have sought the Heart of the Calling Wild, I'm fellow to the breeze!

And I'm breathing the silence deep and calm, I'm drinking the stillness sweet, Alone, Out from the crowds in the great Alone,

Away from the sweltering heat. So here I'll stay and rest awhile, And love the Pure and True; The things of life that search one's soul

From the infinite, tender blue. Clean thoughts that breathe of bigger worlds, Pure thoughts that fill the heart With a rapturous music from Somewhere-land

And make the clouds depart. Sing on, sweet birds, from dawn of day Into the heart of Night, And in my soul, I'll sing with you, For Life in the wild, is Light.

R. D. BAILEY

In the death of Rollin D. Bailey that occurred last week, Michigan lost a good citizen. He was a man of the highest integrity, and was a graduate of Olivet college. For a quarter century he was employed by the State government as a lecturer before Farmers' institutes, working in practically every county of the State. During the World war he was in the employ of the Federal government as a lecturer in the interest of agriculture and traveled in many of the western states giving his talks before farmers, encouraging greater production of crops that were so badly needed through the nation at that time.

During the seven years Mr. Bailey was employed as agricultural agent of Crawford county the people of this community learned to know him very well, and to appreciate his high intellectual and moral ideals. He was a hard worker at his profession and after the day's work was over he was busy with his books, ever studying and learning. He had a keen mind and was keen of perception and quick to understand a situation. By a few he was, apparently, misunderstood but we believe that those who really understood Mr. Bailey held him in the highest esteem and had a deep appreciation for the things he was doing.

Besides his regular professional duties, he always had time for community services whenever required. He was chairman of the agricultural committee of the Grayling Board of Trade for several years and acted as mediator between the farmers and the citizens of Grayling. He everlastingly advocated better social and business relations between the citizens of the town and the farmers.

Mr. Bailey was a fluent and convincing talker, and an able writer and used his talents for the betterment of those about him and the commonwealth in which he lived. And in all this he still was extremely modest and never was heard to boast nor brag. Mr. Bailey left behind a clean record of achievement. He led a life that was inspirational to others and one that may well be emulated.

IT IS of interest to every citizen in Grayling that we have a clean, good looking town. We can't change our store buildings to marble fronts, have bronze statues and flowing fountains bubbling forth in our streets, but we can have clean yards. A little more effort on the part of everyone toward keeping up their lawn, planting and caring for shrubbery, orderly gardens, painting when needed, all will help to making the town more attractive.

Right now is the time to begin. And the down town merchants too can well afford to go across the street and take a look at their places of business. Perhaps a little time and money spent upon our buildings may make them look fine. We know that just about everybody feels as interested in having the town look better as we do. In this reminder we include ourselves as well. Let's sing the old familiar song this spring, "Everybody's Doin' It—doing what? Cleaning up."

IT'S THE LAW that a person convicted for the second time of violation of the prohibition law shall go to prison. And the law is meant for all regardless of age or position, but there are instances when it is sickening to see an old man go to prison especially one who otherwise hasn't been such a bad citizen. We don't want to appear to be opposed to the laws, and we are not, but nevertheless our sympathy goes out to old men who feel the need of making a living by making moonshine and then get caught and have to pay the penalty by imprisonment. And, after all, they are not entirely to blame. The market is good.

The pacifist of a hundred years ago who thought it was a mistake to build the "Constitution" now has a grandson who is sure we ought to dismantle what remains of our navy.

There's one thing to be said for bobbed hair. The presence of woman customers in the barbershops has improved the quality of the funny stories told there.

NEWS REVIEW OF
CURRENT EVENTSJames A. Patten Bares Oil
Bond Deal in Republican Campaign Fund.

JAMES A. PATTEN, veteran Chicago Board of Trade operator, testifying before the senate Teapot Dome investigating committee, related how he unknowingly handled $25,000 of the $200,000 in Liberty bonds advanced by Harry F. Sinclair to help wipe out the Republican national committee's 1920 Presidential campaign deficit.

The bonds were turned over to him in December, 1923, by the late Fred W. Upham, then treasurer of the Republican committee, according to Mr. Patten, who declared that while he knew nothing at the time of the source of the bonds he did suspect—because he, rather than a bank, had been asked to buy them—that something was wrong.

The suspicion became so strong, Mr. Patten, continued, that after a troubled night of thought, he contributed the $25,000 in bonds to the building fund of the Evanston hospital.

Mr. Patten's testimony, as well as the inability of William V. Hodges, present treasurer of the national committee, to find any record of a $100,000 contribution by Sinclair in the books turned over by Upham, strengthened, according to Senator Thomas L. Walsh (Dem., Mont.), his own contention that Sinclair's contribution deliberately was concealed and that the bonds were sold to unsuspecting individuals who were credited with gifts in the amount of their bond purchases.

A CONSPIRACY against organized labor on the part of the courts, railroads and state authorities was charged by John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, in testimony before the senate committee investigating conditions in the central bituminous coal field.

Mr. Lewis said the railroads on their rate structure; condemned the courts for use of the injunction weapon against strikes; scored the use of state police in operations against "peaceful assemblies" of striking or unemployed miners, and shot some barbs at coal interests dominated by John D. Rockefeller, Jr., and Secretary of the Treasury Mellon.

In reply to a question by Senator Watson, Indiana, as to the manner in which congress might aid in remedying conditions of employment and disorganization which had been described by the witness, Mr. Lewis said:

"Partly by consolidation of the units of the industry. Thus, you will find in removing the cutthroat methods of competition among the bituminous companies. You will remove organization and fear. You will remove conditions which now lead a coal operator to say: 'I am in favor of paying an American standard of wages but don't tell anybody I said so.' It is doubtful if the bituminous coal industry pays 1 per cent after its fixed charges are paid. The industry should be treated as the steel industry has been treated."

ELIMINATION of pollution and improvement of the sanitary quality of the water in each of the Great Lakes will be undertaken immediately as the result of an agreement reached by representatives of the health departments of eight states.

The representatives, meeting in Gary at the fifth annual convention of the Lake Michigan Sanitation conference, reached in a resolution, "Great Lakes Drainage Basin Agreement," in which the health departments of Minnesota, Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Michigan, and New York are pledged to conduct a united and vigorous campaign to stop pollution.

Co-operation by the United States public health service was promised by H. R. Crohutz who was sent from Washington. Doctor King was chosen chairman of the committee named to outline its plan of action.

GEN. ALVARO OBREGON, unopposed candidate to succeed President Calles of Mexico, has issued a statement declaring the conference at Havana a failure and discussing at length the question of Mexican immigration into the United States.

"It has been said that the inferior conditions of Mexico's laborers make them undesirable guests there, and that they go to the United States with the object of propagandizing socialist ideas," said General Obregon. "But the truth regarding the inspiration of this bill (now before the senate and senate committees at Washington, seeking to restrict western hemisphere immigration) is not yet known."

"Every Mexican laborer in the United States produces more than he consumes, thereby establishing co-operation both for private and public riches. Therefore, there is no pretext, in the most rudimentary logic, for the restriction of Mexican immigration."

INFORMATION as to unemployment is sought from the secretary of labor in a resolution adopted by the senate after a two-hour debate with a political tinge.

Senator Wagner (Dem., N. Y.), sponsored the resolution and placed the responsibility for present conditions at the door of the Republican administration. He accused President Coolidge of spreading misinformation in his annual message, and mentioned Secretary of Commerce Hoover as being responsible also for reports reflecting unwarranted optimism.

Senator Wagner said that while federal agencies do not compute the exact number of unemployed throughout the United States estimates from private sources show a total of 4,000,000 men out of work.

"I cannot say who furnished the President with this misinformation about high wages and plentiful employment at a time when all the signs and all the evidence indicated that wages were dropping and the ranks of the unemployed were daily being recruited by new armies of the unemployed," Senator Wagner said. "But I do know that it was a grave responsibility to the congress and the nation into the belief that conditions were satisfactory; its effect was to lead to congressional and national inaction so that the crisis was permitted to become more acute."

CHARLES C. EBERHARDT, United States minister at Managua, has communicated to the government of Nicaragua the determination of the United States government to see that Nicaragua has a fair and free election. Mr. Eberhardt has informed the Nicaraguan government that further delay on the part of the Nicaraguan legislature in passing an adequate election law would compel the United States to take steps necessary to see that its obligations in Nicaragua were carried out.

IBN SAUD, king and sultan of Nejd, officially has declared a holy war against the desert Moslems of Iraq and Transjordan, British mandate states. This move, coupled with Egypt's rejection of a proffered treaty, has caused Great Britain to slap down the lid on Egypt's pretensions to independence. The blow takes the form of a note sent to the Egyptian government by Lord Lloyd, British high commissioner, declaring that it will not tolerate the passing of any laws by the Egyptian parliament which are likely to hamper its administration in Egypt or hinder the British government in its duty of defending the interests and security of foreigners.

The note is directed at three recent laws passed by the Egyptian parliament, but not yet signed by the king. The first permits Egyptians to carry arms; the second repeals a law regulating the public assembly and granting practically free, uncontrolled public meetings, and the last deals with the methods of election of village mayors.

All these, it is believed, were passed by the Egyptian parliament to see how far Great Britain would allow the Egyptian Nationalists to go. The position of King Fuad is difficult. He is a nominee of the British government and not particularly popular in Egypt, and while he has to obey the British, who put him on the throne, he has also to make a show of playing up to the National sentiment. In the circumstances, it is expected, however, that he will veto the three laws.

Men, armored cars, tanks and airplanes were quickly mobilized along the border of Transjordan by the British authorities to turn back any attack by the tribesmen.

THE door to the border has been unlocked for Canadians in a decision handed down by the Court of Appeals reversing a decision of the Federal court of Buffalo. The decision was made in the case of two Canadians who were arrested on December 1, 1927, as they were entering this country without having expired consular immigration visas as required by the immigration act of 1924, and by rule 80 of the Department of Labor. The effect of the higher court's decision is that Canadians may, without restriction, enter the United States to work or seek employment and return to their homes in the evening.

FULL returns from the general election in Japan place the balance of power between the government and the opposition in the hands of 14 independents, of whom Yuzuki Tsurumi is one of the leaders. Mr. Tsurumi is well known in the United States and is known to be friendly to this country. A happy augury for good relations between Japan and the United States is seen in this by Mr. Tsurumi's friends in this country. It is also believed that it will lead to a more liberal policy on the part of Japan toward China.

SENATOR THOMAS WALSH of Montana, who has been injected into the race for the Democratic nomination for the Presidency by party leaders opposed to Gov. Al Smith of New York, received a setback in his first trial of strength with the New York governor. The scene of the conflict was the Democratic state convention in South Dakota. Smith received 48,876 votes to 41,213 for Walsh.

South Dakota Republicans endorsed Frank O. Lowden of Illinois as their Presidential preference without opposition.

The Iowa Republican convention instructed the seven delegates at large for Governor Lowden. The state's twenty-two district delegates, two from each of the eleven congressional districts, were "strongly urged" to cast their votes for Lowden. Under the rules only the delegates at large can be instructed by the state convention.

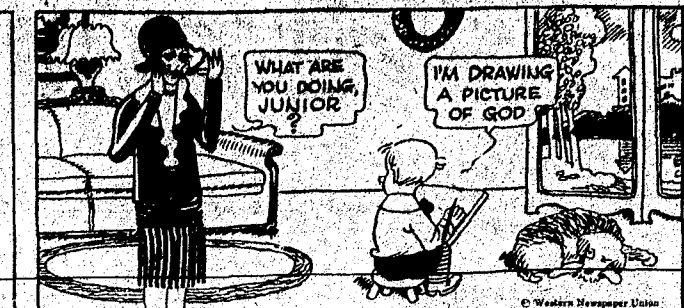

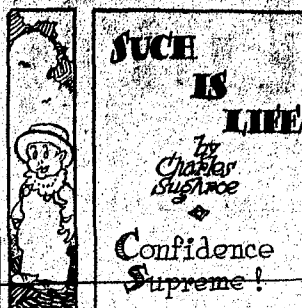

Kansas Republicans in state convention endorsed the Presidential candidacy of Senator Charles Curtis of that state.

WHEN the disarmament commission meets in Geneva the British government plans to lay before it a scheme for limitation of tonnage and extension of the age limit in battleships.

An interesting note on government reports on the fleets of the world, just issued, shows Great Britain still is vastly superior to any other sea power. At first sight, America and Great Britain appear almost equal, but an analysis of the report proves Britain's superiority.

Take the matter of battleships, where the 5-5.3 ratio is supposed to obtain. Great Britain has sixteen battleships, the United States has eighteen, and Japan six, but Great Britain has four new cruisers, while the United States has none. In cruisers, Great Britain has forty-nine and the United States has thirty-two, while Great Britain has eight aircraft carriers and the United States has only three.

In the case of destroyers the United States apparently is far ahead with 800 to Great Britain's 150, but most of the United States are small and obsolete, while Great Britain's are all up-to-date.

Similarly, in submarines, Great Britain has only 55 to the United States' 121, but again the majority of America's are small, old, and fit only for coast defense.

FORMER members of the house or senate, found lobbying for or against legislation within two years after their retirement, would be liable to at least two years imprisonment under a bill introduced in the house by Representative Edgar Howard (Dem., Neb.).

The American Embassy at Mexico City was injured in a recent earthquake, and Senator Heflin forgot to say that it was due to our imperialistic policy in Latin-America.

An American was fined $18 for taking bootleg liquor into England. Probably he was prosecuted under the "defense of the realm" act.

Water Came From Fire
It is hard to believe that water could have at one time been a part of the seething mass of fire that was the earth. But this is true, and such a large part of the gas or water vapor cooled down and became water that it covers nearly three quarters of the surface of the earth. (Ed. 1928. Western Newspaper Union.)

We believe that Grayling is now entering on an era of unprecedented prosperity. Business already here will be expanded and in our next issue we expect to give details of a new industry, which makes the above assertion an assured fact.

Monday morning's train was derailed this side of Roscommon by the rails spreading. The engine and every coach but two left the track, and it seemed almost a miracle that they were not ditched. No one was hurt except by fright. A train went down from here and brought in the passengers about seven o'clock.

Died—At the home of her father, Thomas Ingle, Thursday, March 2, Mary E. Wheeler, aged 33 years.

The deceased had been a resident of our village for twenty-two years. She leaves two children, with the father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Ingle, and her sister and three brothers, to mourn her loss. She was an active member of the L. O. T. M. M. and the Loyal Guards. The funeral was conducted from St. Mary's Catholic church, Saturday morning, Assistant Pastor J. J. Riess officiating. The large concourse of people in attendance and the profuse floral offerings attested the personal regard of many friends.

O. F. Barnes has bought 250 head of Hereford steers to start on the ranch in South Branch. Our people and the people of the state will hear from this ranch in a way that will give the lie to the croakers. He will put in two hundred and fifty acres this year, to alfalfa and red clover and the legumes of other kinds.

O. F. Barnes of South Branch has bought a thousand pounds of cowpeas which were raised in Ogemaw county, which he will sow this spring on his ranch. He will also put in twenty acres of alfalfa, all of which will be treated with the clover bacteria, which he has arranged for from Washington. Watch them for results.

Elmer Qua of Gaylord has been arrested on suspicion of being the firebug who has cost our neighboring village many thousands of dollars. It seems impossible that one, associated as he is with the best families of the town, can be guilty, but it is said the evidence is strong against him. If guilty he should pay the penalty, and if not we trust the cloud of suspicion will be entirely removed.

The work of Miss Kathryn McPeak, the vocal soloist who is on the program for two numbers, "If I were only you," and "Tennessee," at the concert tomorrow evening, has been spoken of in unusually high terms by musical circles in Bay City, from which place she came to Grayling only a short time ago. Those who have heard her here predict a surprise in store for our musical people.

The matter of transferring the equipment of our fire department from the township to the village has been discussed between the common council and the township board, but no satisfactory decision has so far been reached. It is proposed to allow the people to vote on the question at the township meeting, thinking that it may lead to an amicable settlement of the question.

One party contends that the money which has been expended was taken from the township at large when the township, outside of the village, paid more than half the aggregate taxes, and that no one outside of the village has ever had any benefit from it. The others contend that the taxes paid by the village is much the larger amount and that all expense will hereafter have to be met by the village, and that it will be no more than fair that the property be given to the village. So that the question is: "Shall this property be gratuitously transferred to the village or shall the village reimburse the township?"

The bill introduced in the senate by Senator Doherty, incorporating West Branch as a city passed that branch of the legislature without opposition and in a very expeditious manner.

AGRICULTURAL NOTES

ADVISE FIRST AID FOR WINTER GRAIN.

Fertilizers and Soil Culture Aid In Repairing Winter Injuries.

The use of nitrate fertilizers for top dressing fields of winter grain which have suffered winter injury, and the use of the cultipacker roller on such fields are recommendations made by the soils and farm crop departments at Michigan State College.

During backward springs, grain on soils which are high in moisture content cannot get sufficient nitrates from the soil to furnish the food needed for satisfactory growth. The use of sulphate of ammonia or nitrate of soda will enable the plant to obtain food and outgrow the winter injury.

The use of from 60 to 100 pounds of the fertilizer per acre is advised. On acid soils, it may be better to use nitrate of soda rather than sulphate of ammonia. The fertilizers should be applied soon after plant growth starts.

The use of the cultipacker or roller firms the soil and saves many plants that have been partially heaved out. Packing the soil also forces small stones below the surface and may save repair bills at harvesting time. The firm seed bed made by the cultipacker assists in securing good seedlings of legumes. The seedlings should be made before the soil is packed or rolled down.

Lead arsenate—at least $75,000 worth of it—is used annually in New England in the war against the gipsy and brown-tail moths. Lead arsenate is also used against the codling moth, a destructive pest that does damage amounting to $12,000,000 a year in the orchards of the United States.

The respective values of the seed and stem ends of seed potatoes have long been a matter of controversy among potato growers. A study by the U. S. Department of Agriculture, based both on practical experiments and on literature on the subject, indicates that there is little, if any difference in the value of the two sets for seed purposes.

Wood ashes, because of the content of potash and lime are of use as fertilizer. The commercial value of wood ashes usually depends more on their content of potash than of lime, but nearly all contain enough lime to warrant their being considered among liming materials. Wood ashes are frequently scattered on the home garden and have a good effect in improving the condition of the soil.

A home demonstration club in Brunswick County, Va., adopted as one of its units of work in 1927 the making of wash dresses. To stimulate greater interest in the work, the county home demonstration agent suggested that a "Dollar Dress Contest" be held, with a prize of a dollar for the most attractive dress made by a club member and costing less than a dollar. Fourteen excellent dresses were entered in the contest and exhibited at one of the club meetings. The dresses were judged on selection of material, design, cost, and workmanship. They were then used as a basis for suggestions by the agent in a talk on good points and mistakes. These dresses were exhibited in the club booth at the county and State fairs, and the makers won $23 in prizes.

Eggs by Parcel Post

Eggs can be marketed by parcel post within the first and second zones (sometimes within the third zone) with profit to the producer, who usually secures a larger profit and also to the consumer, who can obtain fresher eggs and often at lower prices. Parcel-post shipment is useful for the poultryman with a flock too small to allow making shipments by the case. To market eggs successfully by parcel post, select only first-class eggs produced under sanitary conditions. A strong, light container should be used and one that meets the postal requirements. Each egg should be wrapped separately in soft paper, taking care, if possible, not to send eggs that are thin-shelled, defective in any way, or fertile, as fertile eggs spoil more rapidly. Do not send soiled eggs by parcel post and also avoid shipping washed eggs. If each egg is candled, this of course avoids any possibility of shipping defective ones.

The high-producing dairy cow is one of the hardest working animals on the farm. In the spring and summer months she must mow the grass to provide the quantity of feed which she transforms into milk. In the early spring the grasses contain so much water that it is almost impossible for heavy milkers to gather enough grass for the required amount, but nearly all contain enough lime of dry material that is the equivalent of winter feeding. Later in the spring and early summer it is more nearly possible to produce any considerable quantity of grain to the dairy cow on pasture. Cows on pastures producing more than 20 pounds of milk daily should have 1 pound of grain to each four to six pounds of milk produced. Cows producing more than 35 pounds a day should also have added to the ration some high protein concentrate such as linseed-oil meal.

Among good succulent feeds for dairy cows are the sugar beet and mangle, the latter producing a larger tonnage per acre and being more easily utilized. Mangles should be kept in storage for several weeks before being fed to the cow, as the freshly harvested roots may cause scour. From 50 to 70 pounds of mangles, chopped or sliced can be fed to the cow daily; the amount of sugar beets should be limited to 80 or 40 pounds.

Hints for Liming Soils

Ground limestone may be applied to fields at any time. It does not injure seeds that come in contact with it. Neither does it tend to set free the ammonia in manure that comes in contact with it, so that it is often possible to scatter a suitable amount of ground limestone on a load of manure in the spreader and apply it in this way. It should not be mixed with or applied at the same time as superphosphate, since this tends to bring about a change of the water-soluble phosphorus compound to an insoluble form. On the other hand, lime in the form of burned lime or slaked lime requires somewhat more care in application. It should not, especially if it is unslaked, be applied so that it comes in contact with seeds or young plants. Like the ground limestone, it should not be mixed with superphosphate. Neither should it be mixed with stable manure, as this brings about loss of ammonia. Lime may be applied by drilling with a seed drill or by spreading with a manure spreader. Drilling is not a satisfactory method if the lime is not in a proper condition to be uniformly distributed. A manure spreader serves satisfactorily when a thin layer of manure is placed in the bottom and the size of the load regulated according to the quantity to be spread. The practice of placing burned lime in piles in the field and slaking it by the addition of water or allowing it to slake in the air and then spreading by hand is a somewhat common one. This is a disagreeable operation, and uniform distribution is difficult.

Talkers and Doers

Charles A. Lindbergh is doing a lot of flying and very little talking. His attitude recalls the speech made by Wilbur Wright, one of the inventors of the airplane, at a dinner given in honor of the Wright brothers in Paris many years ago when he was doing his first flying in France.

"The Parrot," said Mr. Wright, when he was called on, "is the best talker among the birds but the poorest flyer." Then he sat down.—Kansas City Star.

The One Quiet Boy Won

A $16 a week job advertised for a boy over 17, to sweep and be generally useful in a New York office, brought 600 applicants and an incidental riot. The only quiet boy in the big crowd got the job.—H. G. Sibley in the Chicago Journal of Commerce.

Bring this complete automobile show into your own home

THE national automobile shows in New York and Chicago were too far away for most Americans to attend. But by clipping the coupon below, you can bring a representative automobile show into your home.

At the shows General Motors exhibited a complete line of automobiles—"a car for every purse and purpose."

They are the quality cars of their respective price classes. They range in price-at-the-factory from $495 to $5,500. They include 89 models of every type and kind. They embody improvements tested and proved at General Motors' Proving Ground, which, together with the Research Laboratories, is maintained to assure continuous progress.

"A car for every purse and purpose"

The General Motors cars are briefly described below. The new models offer more performance, more comfort, more beauty than ever before in automobile history. All have 4-wheel brakes. All closed bodies are by Fisher. All have Duco finish. All are built of quality materials. And for their convenient purchase, General Motors has provided the standard low-cost GMAC Plan.

CHEVROLET. 7 models, $495 to $715. Bigger and better than ever before. 4-wheel brakes. Longer wheel base. Still more powerful engine. Luxurious Fisher Bodies. Shock absorber springs. New hood. New Duco colors. New instrument panel and other improvements. ALSO truck chassis: ½-ton, $395. 1-ton, $495.

OLDSMOBILE. 7 models, $925 to $1085. Entirely redesigned by General Motors, the new Oldsmobile has earned the title of "The Fine Car at Low Cost." Longer, roomier, more powerful—and the last word in styling. Fisher Bodies. 4-wheel brakes.

OAKLAND. 9 models, $1045 to $1375. The All-American Six. Advanced engineering and precision construction. Longer, lower and more beautiful. Bodies by Fisher. Every convenience. 4-wheel brakes. New Duco colors. Harmonic balancer.

BUICK. 16 models, $1195 to $1995. The largest value in Buick's famous history. Beautiful low bodies by Fisher. Getaway like an arrow from a bow. Vibrationless beyond belief. Famous 6-cylinder "Valve-in-head" engine. Sealed-in chassis.

LASALLE. 16 models, $2350 to $2975. This beautiful car was designed as companion car to Cadillac. Has V-type 90-degree 8-cylinder engine which has made Cadillac the standard fine car of the world. Built in Cadillac factory. Continental in appearance.

CADILLAC. 26 models, $3295 to $5500. "What," General Motors asked last year, "can possibly be done to improve Cadillac?" The result is embodied in the new models now on display, representing the high-water mark of Cadillac's long history. Sumptuous bodies by Fisher and Fleetwood. 500 color combinations to choose from.

FRIGIDAIRE—The Electric Refrigerator. General Motors has applied the processes which have made the automobile available to every family, to the production of electric refrigerators. SILVER CUP AWARDED IN WINTER EGG RACE

Eggs Have To Be Numerous and Meet Standard Weight Requirements

In International Contest

East Lansing, March 5.—The silver cup awarded for high winter egg production in the International Egg Laying Contest at Michigan State College goes to W. C. Eckard, Paw Paw, whose pen of White Leghorns produced 840 eggs from November to March 1.

Another pen of White Leghorns owned by W. A. Downs, Washington, ran the winners a close race and finished second only 4.8 points behind the winners.

The contest winners this year are decided on a point system that considers the number of eggs and also their weight. Eggs that weigh less than 24 ounces to the dozen count less than those that meet the weight standard.

Egg buyers pay less for small eggs than those of proper size, and the contest managers hope to induce breeders to select for their breeding pens, stock that has shown ability to produce standard sized eggs.

During November and December, the standard for egg size for the pullets entered in the contest was 20 ounces to the dozen. After a two-month production period the birds are expected to produce full sized eggs and the 24 ounce standard is initiated.

At the present time the Department of Conservation has six major standard game refuges in operation, covering approximately 60,000 acres. Surrounding all newer refuge units are public hunting grounds which add up to about 75,000 acres. For the most part, this land was purchased by the State through tax delinquency, the balance having been purchased by money from game fund or by below the valuations as assessed for taxation.

The average annual production of ring-neck pheasants and eggs from the State Game Farm is 6,000 birds and 30,000 eggs.

The Department of Conservation plans soon to issue a complete set of rules and regulations governing the use and occupancy of State lands owned and controlled by the Department, and will particularly stress the importance of one having to do with the disposal of refuse and rubbish after camping or other occupancy.

This, to a large extent, will do away with unsightly abandoned camp sites of those using State lands for camping, picnicking or other recreational uses. Act 17 of the Public Acts of 1921, as amended by Act 337, Public Acts of 1927, gives the Department authority to set forth rules and regulations, the violation of which is a misdemeanor and punishable by fine or imprisonment.

According to P. J. Hoffmaster, State Sup't. of Parks, "The policy of putting park caretakers in uniforms has been satisfactory. Campers and tourists in State Parks can readily identify the uniformed caretakers and Park rules and regulations have been easier to enforce than before. "Courtesy and service" has been the practice and watchword of these people who come from every State in the Union. Although more than five million people visited our State Parks last year and availed themselves of the many opportunities for their enjoyment and recreation, we predict that the coming year will see more people using our park systems than ever before. Certainly the popularity of this service has demonstrated the importance of the parks system as an activity in Conservation affairs, and we are doing everything within our power to provide for comfort and convenience of the visitors each year."

HOW DEATH VALLEY WAS NAMED

By Erwin Greer
(President Greer School of Electrical and Automotive Trades, Chicago, Ill.)

The name "Death Valley" was not conjured up by a poetic imagination as many California names have been, but commemorates a tragic incident in the American settlement of California, according to Phil Townsend Hanna, the writer.

Briefly, the story is something like this:

A large group of California-bound emigrants were camped near Salt Lake City in the late fall of 1849. The fate of the Donner party was still fresh in the minds of the Utah settlers who counseled the emigrants not to try the northern passes across the Sierra. Eventually it was decided to attempt a southern entry into California over the route of a Mormon trail. No wagons had yet traversed this road but it was believed to be passable. Accordingly a guide was engaged and a train of 107 wagons set out over the southern route.

But the emigrants were impatient. They had heard of a short-cut that would take them across the Sierra in the vicinity of Tulare and thereby save them a vast deal of time and traveling in reaching the mines which was their objective. Arriving at Mountain Meadows in the southwest corner of Utah, 27 wagons and something more than 40 emigrants decided to take the shortcut. The balance of the party followed down the Mormon trail and arrived safely and expeditiously in Southern California.

The party that deviated from the better known route, however, immediately began to experience privation and hardship. They found little water, food for the oxen became increasingly scarce as they crossed the arid wasteland of Southern Nevada and soon they were in a deplorable plight. The party again divided, but intercepted each other from day to day. Finally all entered Death Valley down Furnace Creek Canyon.

One group camped in the vicinity of the present Furnace Creek ranch; the other, to which Manly was attached, seeking a western outlet from the valley, journeyed south and at last brought up at what now is known as Bennett's Well (named after a member of this party). When death seemed imminent, Manly and another bachelor in the party agreed to seek aid. The pair started out over the Panamint Butte, passed Seares Lake, struck into the Walker train near Indian Wells (Owens Valley), proceeded southward across the Mojave Desert, traversed Soledad Canyon and finally reached Los Angeles. CONSERVATION ITEMS OF INTEREST

During the past two weeks, approximately 25,000 citizens in fifteen Michigan cities and towns have viewed the Department of Conservation wild-life and outdoors films and listened to the accompanying lectures given by Staff Photographers, James McGillivray and Walter Hastings, according to George R. Hogarth, Acting Director.

"So popular has this branch of our service become," states Mr. Hogarth, "that we are often unable to meet all requests. It is not uncommon for Mr. Hastings or Mr. McGillivray to be booked solidly for an entire month ahead. Letters of commendation regarding the lectures and films are coming to the department by the score, and it is our plan to eventually show these films to every man, woman and child in the State.

Schools, sportsmen's groups, women's clubs, and other civic organizations are availing themselves of this opportunity for entertainment and Conservation information." There is no charge for this service.

Of the more than one million acres of land owned by the State, but 200,000 acres are in intensively worked State Forests and the greater share of this as well as the greater share of the remainder is available for hunting and other recreational uses.

An actress noted for her beauty recently engaged a youthful and susceptible press agent, who immediately became smitten. The fair one's fiancé, noting the ardor of the young scribe, thus politely cautioned him:

"You're a nice kid and I'd like to see you get along, but if you can't keep your distance I'll have to beat your block off and hire another press agent."

The actress and her young press agent now conduct their business over the telephone.

If the expectations of Lester J. Hinderhot, the young inventor, are realized, his new electro-magnetic motor will revolutionize the automotive machinery of the world. Mr. Hinderhot, who is at present in New York, said:

"The engine actually makes its own electricity; it generates its own power, and the magnet will function for from two to three thousand hours."

If it turns out to be true that in the new engine we shall find "what the world has been waiting for," the possibilities of the future will be limitless.

The new Hannah Lavenburg House, a home for working girls, now being built in East Twelfth street, New York, will be the last word in completeness of equipment and comfort. Every room of the eight-story building will be sunny and handsomely furnished. There will be clubrooms, schoolrooms, a chapel and a restaurant. The rates will be from $5 to $12 weekly for board and room. The building is being constructed by the Frederick L. Lavenburg Foundation as a means of providing comfortable quarters at little cost for deserving working girls.

A young whale—a two-ton infant—arrived in Gowanus Canal the other day. Its advent was heralded as a sign of approaching spring. Why the whale selected that polluted and poisonous stream as a port of call cannot be explained except upon the ground that the animal was insane or was afflicted with suicidal mania. If the latter supposition is correct, then the infant whale accomplished his purpose, for he was landed and never again will disport himself in his native element.

turned over the same route and rescued the party that had remained behind, and which included women and children. Before civilization was reached, however, of the more than 40 who left the main caravan at Mountain Meadows, thirty-four had perished.

On leaving the region in which they had spent so many miserable and distressing weeks, Manly turned over for one last look, murmuring "Good-bye, Death Valley." Thus, it is asserted, Death Valley received its name.
